

EY SAILING ART & SCIENCE EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMME 2017

EY Sailing is proud to present a series of art & science workshops for 2017 for curious individuals who are willing to explore creativity on a yacht. We believe that sailing has different dimensions such as an philosophical and adventurous side to a more cultural and sophisticated impact. We will be sailing in the Ionian Pelagos and this year's programme will include

Sound Art Sailing Residency

Instructor: Manolis Manousakis

18-25 June 2017

Course description:

This is a week-long soundscapes recording residency, exploring the sounds of the Ionian Pelagos through the spatial exploration of various islands and locations. This workshop is a collaboration between EY Sailing and sound artist Manos Manousakis that will take place in June 2017 on our sailing yacht.

Concept of the residency:

Residents will learn extended recording techniques using a variety of microphones both for deep water recordings and soundscapes. Their activities include underwater recordings of the Ionian sea, the landscape of Paxos and other remote islands. Everyday life, every place and location will act as a soundscape inspiration; not only through the recordings undertaken in each place and context but also through their engagement with the local communities and their activities. The recorded material will be used to produce and create their own sound compositions based on compositional electroacoustic techniques. Throughout the residency, the participants will have the opportunity to collate their individual audio library through their everyday soundscapes recordings. The residency is open to both experienced sound artists and people who are interested in acoustic ecology, recording artists, musicians.

Course Layout:

1st day:	Introduction, basic theory analysis on acoustic ecology, basic recording techniques.
2nd day:	Recording techniques, hands on experience on recording. Basic sound composition techniques and file editing. Night in Paxos.
3rd day:	Soundscape recordings on Paxos island followed by an editing session.
4th day:	Soundscape recordings in Parga followed by an editing session.
5th day:	Soundscape recordings in Aheron river and Preveza followed by an editing session.
6th day:	File editing and composition
7th day:	Final presentation of works and compositions at the port of Lefkas.

Course Tutor: Manos Manousakis

Tutor Information:

Born in Athens in Greece (1975). He gained his footing in live theater while in Chicago Illinois. Prior to his sojourn in Chicago, was deeply engaged in both independent avant-garde theater and in the popular theater of his native country. Since that time, he has rarely been without a film or stage project and as a result has embraced a wide variety of stylistic influences.

He works as a composer and sound designer since 1998. His works include compositions for small ensembles, solos, electroacoustic compositions, video art and multimedia shows. He has also composed the original music for theater shows, documentaries, tv series, short films and theater dance shows.

As a sound designer he has worked both in feature film projects, documentaries, advertising, theater and short films. He has also recorded extensively the landscape of Greece and has been involved in major sound projects like the SoundscapesLandscapes a sound walk in Athens Greece in the neighborhood of Neos Kosmos and Keramikos.
